

The Red Fox

By Teresa Taylor

Doc Ned is a vet.

Doc Ned has a red fox.

It is a baby red fox.

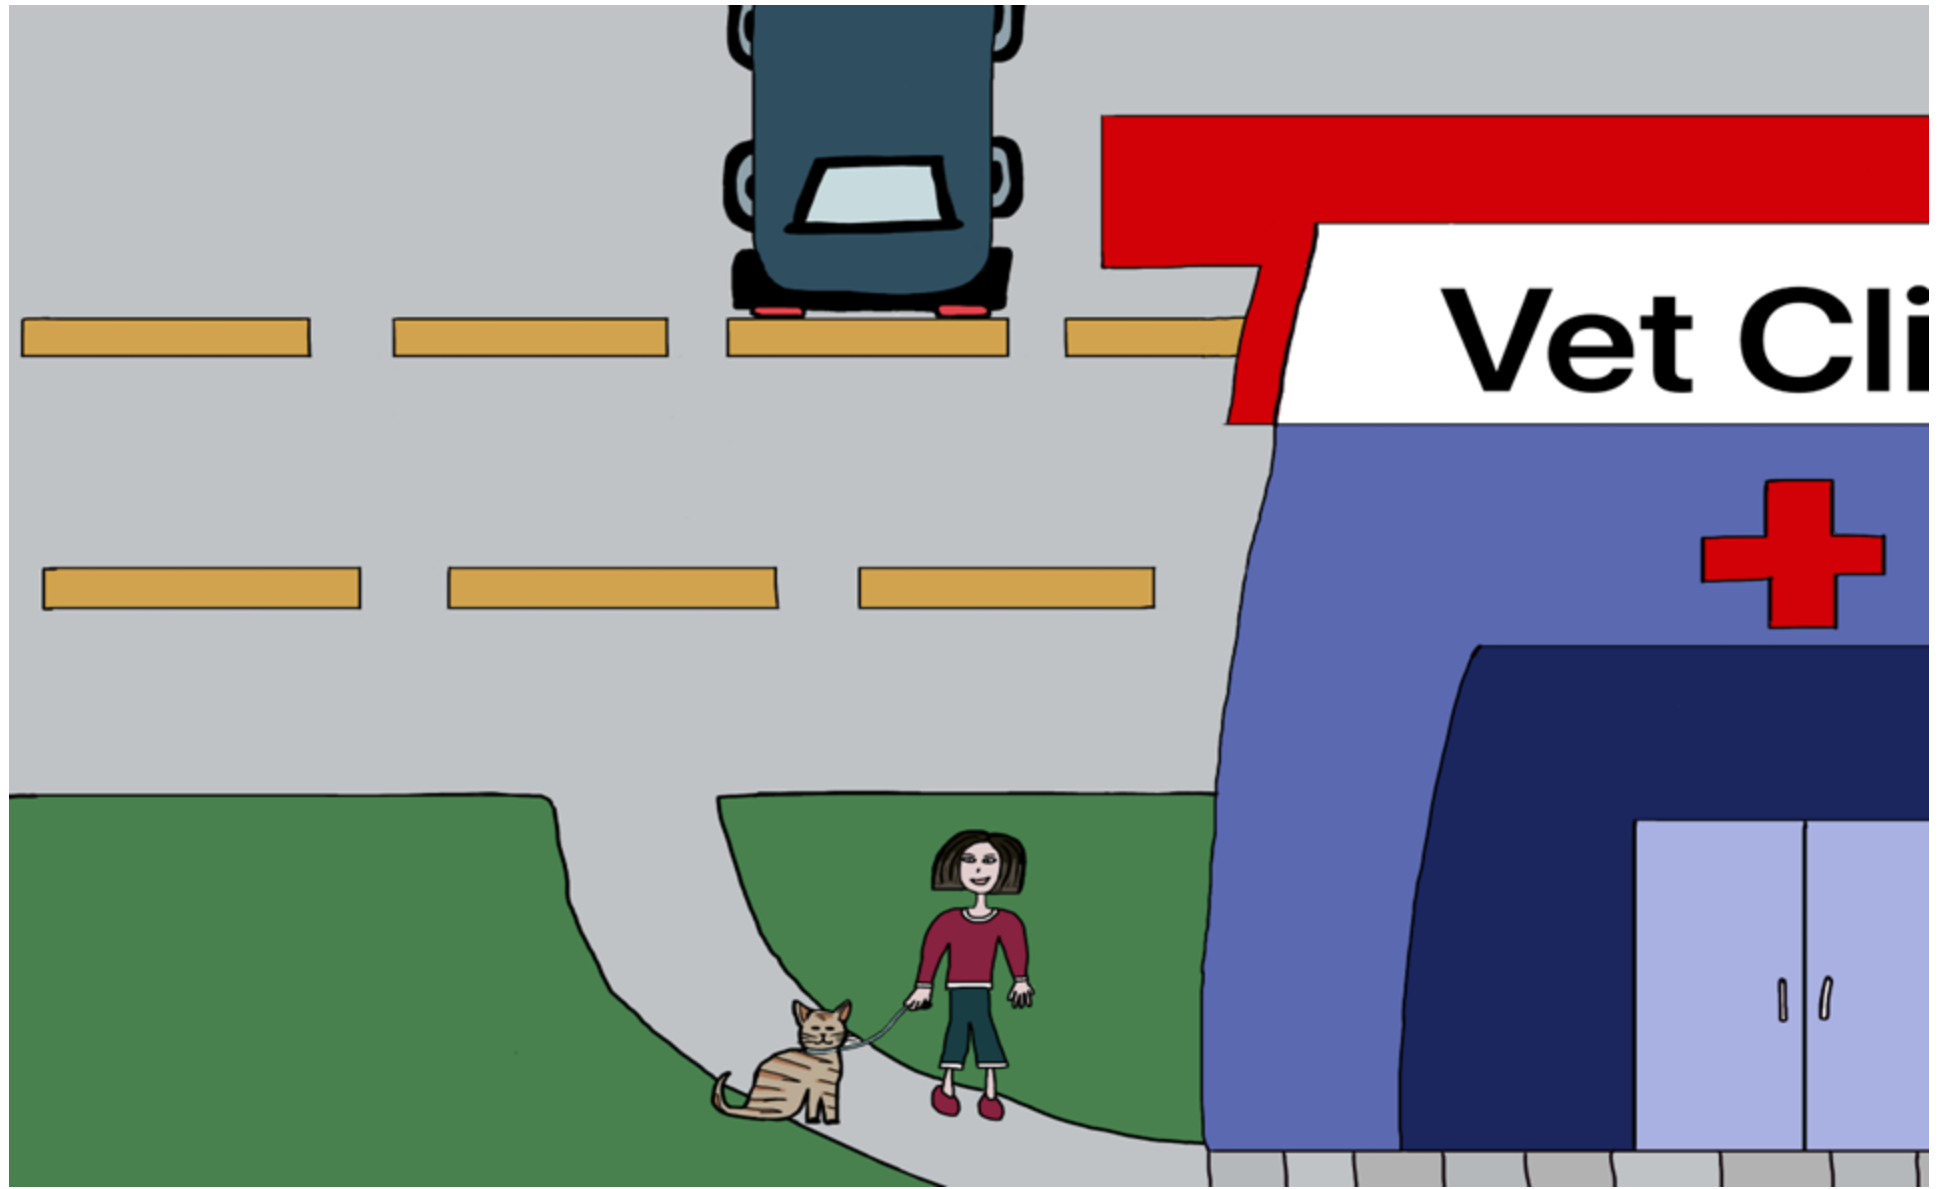

A baby fox is a kit, cub, or a pup.

Doc Ned put the fox in a pen.

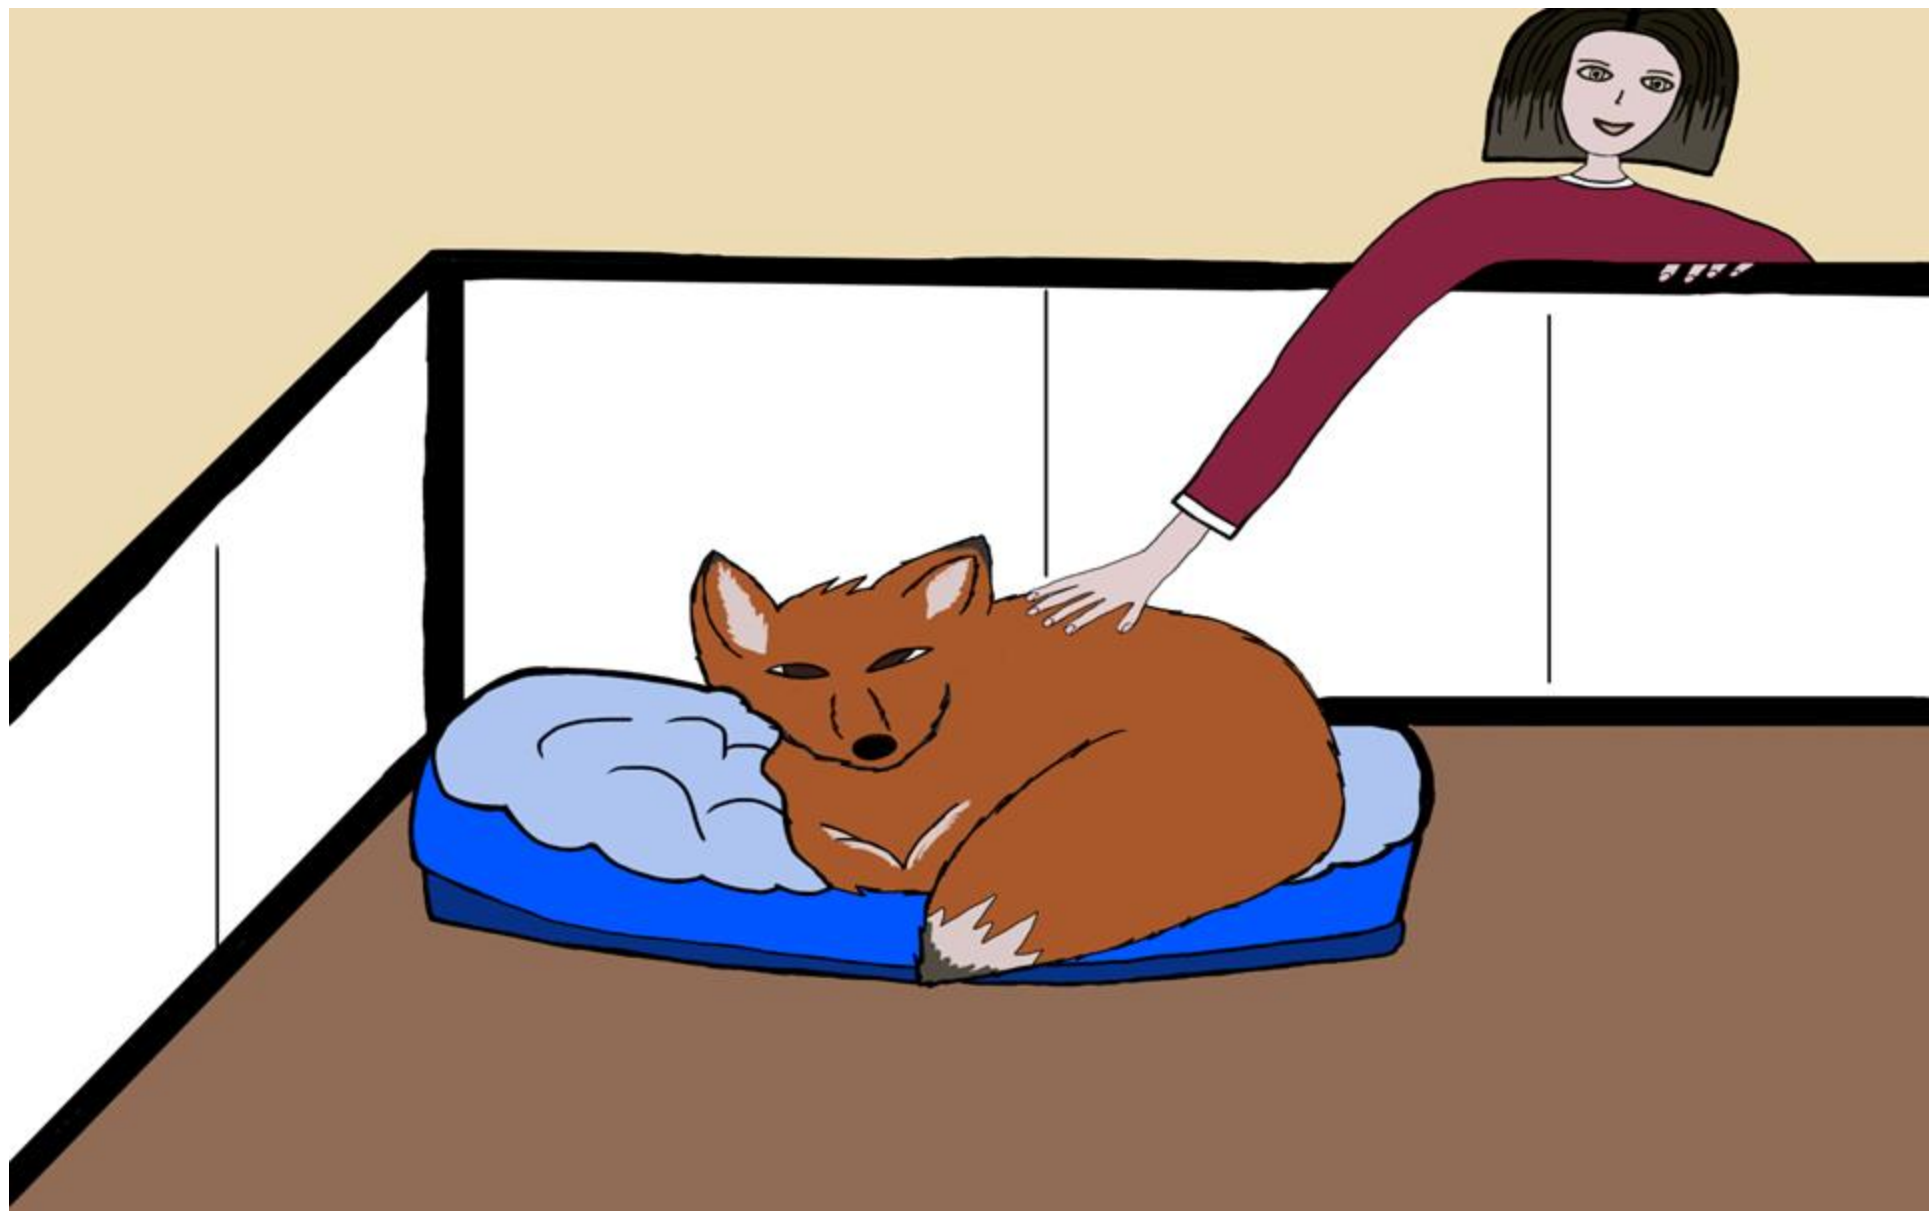

The pen is like a fox den.

Peg and her pet cat are at the vet.

Doc Ned let Peg pet the kit fox.

Peg pet his red fur. The fox went to bed.

Fox Facts:

- Red fox babies are called kits, cubs, or pups.
- Baby foxes are born in a den.
- Baby foxes are born blind and deaf (they can't see or hear at birth).
- The average litter, or group of babies born at the same time, is 4-5 kits.
- A baby fox weighs 3 oz. That is the size of a candy bar or deck of cards.
- Foxes use their long, thick, fluffy tails as a warm blanket to cover up when they sleep or when they are cold.
